CASE STUDY

Software Development Company

» The technology recruiting solutions from Perceptive Recruiting have helped many businesses turn the stress of meeting their hiring objectives into remarkable success.

1

Our client was without internal corporate recruiting help and worked consistently with 7 recruiting companies for their software development openings.

Our competitors sent undesirable candidates, diluting the candidate pool with under-qualified candidates or ones that did not match their culture. The client frustration came from spending too much time looking at resumes that weren't a fit for their needs and extending time to fill the job.

2

We dug deep into their technology requirements and company culture. We generated specific technical questions for interviews and gathered benefits, salary, bonuses and other information to "sell" to candidates. We facilitated personality and technical tests and scheduled interviews on calendars. We coordinated with HR to complete on-boarding packages.

We saved them valuable time to fill their software development roles, so they could concentrate on their project deadlines. We were efficient and excellent representatives to sell their company.

This client would tell you that being an engineer himself, he sees the incredible value we bring in eliminating wasteful resume viewing and giving him the opportunity to hire exceptional long-term employees quickly and efficiently.

We have an ongoing 16+ year relationship with this client and source solely for his company when they have software development, DBA, BA, or technical support openings. We work with multiple managers who run different departments that trust us with their recruiting.

Our quality recruitment and dedication to the success of our clients made the difference in this situation, and we provide that same level of commitment and customer service to every client we work with. Our track record of long term relationships with our clients is excellent!

See what we can do for you.
